The single-track Velten (N 53/Z 66) - Leegebruch-Oranienburg (N 53/Z 67) railroad line was opened on 16 February 1951. The line uses the old track on the section from Oranienburg to Eden. The track from Eden to Velten was newly laid. The line is designed for steam locomotive operations. Wooden ties have been used, and the rails of various types, which were dismantled from other railroad lines, have been nailed in place but are not yet welded. The line, which has not been built very carefully, is a feeder line for the Hennigsdorf steel foundry.
